Social Security Agreement between Ireland and New Zealand

This leaflet is a brief guide to the Social Security Agreement between Ireland and New Zealand which came into force on 1 March 1994.

1. What is the purpose of the Agreement?

The main purpose of the Agreement is to protect the pension rights of people who have worked in Ireland and who have worked or resided in New Zealand.

The Agreement does this by allowing social security contributions paid in one country to be counted towards qualifying for certain payments in the other country.

The Agreement also deals with the social security status of workers who are sent on temporary assignments from one country to the other.

2. Who does this Agreement cover?

The Agreement covers you if you have paid social insurance contributions in Ireland and have periods of reckonable residence in New Zealand.

Self-employed contributors are also covered by the Agreement. It also extends to your dependants and survivors, for example Widow's, Widower's or Surviving Civil Partner's (Contributory) and Guardian (Contributory) Pensions.

3. Which payments are covered by the Agreement?

The Irish payments covered under the Agreement are:

- State Pension (Contributory) (payable at age 66),
 - State Pension (Transition) (payable at age 65),
 - Widow's, Widower's or Surviving Civil Partner's (Contributory) Pension,
 - Guardian's Payment (Contributory),
 - Invalidity Pension,
- and
- Bereavement Grant.

The New Zealand payments covered under the Agreement are:

- National Superannuation,
 - Invalid's Benefit,
 - Widow's Benefit,
 - Domestic purposes benefit for Widowers,
 - Veteran's Pension,
- and
- Orphans Benefit.

4. Which country's Social Security laws apply?

In general, you are subject to the Social Security legislation of the country where you work.

Therefore, if you come to work in Ireland you will normally be subject to Irish social security law and pay social insurance (PRSI) contributions here.

Similarly, if you go to work in New Zealand, you will be subject to the New Zealand social security laws and may have to pay social security contributions there.

Temporary Assignments

If you are sent by an Irish employer to work in New Zealand on a temporary assignment, you will continue to pay Irish PRSI contributions up to the first 24 months of your employment in New Zealand.

Therefore, if you are at present working in Ireland and are being sent to work in New Zealand on a temporary assignment, you or your employer should contact the following section:

PRSI Special Collections

Department of Social Protection
Cork Road
Waterford

LoCall: 1890 690 690 (from the Republic of Ireland only), or +353 14 715898 (from Northern Ireland or overseas).

This should be done as early as possible, so that the necessary forms and advice can be given.

5. How does the Agreement benefit me?

You may qualify for social welfare payments based on a combined Irish and New Zealand contribution record if you do not have enough contributions on either record alone.

6. How are payments calculated?

Irish Payments

Under the provisions of the Agreement, contributions paid in New Zealand can be used to satisfy the PRSI conditions for Irish payments.

However, you must have a minimum amount of Irish PRSI contributions to be eligible to combine New Zealand and Irish Social Security contributions.

In the case of State Pension (Contributory), State Pension (Transition), Widow's, Widower's or Surviving Civil Partner's (Contributory) Pension and Invalidity Pension, you will need to have worked in Ireland and have a minimum of 52 Irish contributions paid or credited and you satisfy the minimum New Zealand residence conditions.

Once these conditions are satisfied a formula (see below) is used in order to establish the rate payable for:

- State Pension (Contributory),
- State Pension (Transition),
- Invalidity Pension, and
- Widow's, Widower's or Surviving Civil Partner's (Contributory) Pension.

Formula for calculating pension where Irish and New Zealand contributions are involved.

Total number of Irish contributions

multiplied by

Amount of pension due if all the contributions were made in Ireland

and then divide by

Total combined contributions in Ireland and New Zealand.

The social insurance conditions vary slightly depending on the other country or countries involved.

Example

The following is an example of how we work out a pension if you have social insurance paid in Ireland and you have worked or resided in New Zealand. Each calendar week or part thereof of reckonable New Zealand residence shall be deemed to be a qualifying contribution in Ireland.

You have 280 Irish and 560 New Zealand contributions over 35 years from the date you started insurable employment up to the end of the tax year before you reach pension age.

Step 1

We work out the 'notional' pension that you would get if your contributions, both Irish and New Zealand were Irish contributions. To do this, we add together the Irish and New Zealand contributions and then we divide the total by the number of years to get the yearly average number of contributions.

Contributions

280 Irish + 560 New Zealand	840
840 ÷ 35 years	24

A yearly average of 24 Irish contributions would give a weekly personal pension of €225.80* (notional amount).

*State Pension rates as at January 2011

Step 2

We multiply the notional pension by the number of Irish contributions and divide the answer by the total number of contributions. This gives the pro-rata pension payment.

Personal amount

$$\frac{\text{€}225.80 \times 280}{840} \quad \text{€}75.27$$

If you qualify to receive an Increase for a Qualified Adult (IQA) with your Irish pension, we multiply the notional amount, including the IQA, by the number of Irish contributions and divide the answer by the total number of contributions.

Personal amount plus Increase for a Qualified Adult under 66

$$\frac{\text{€}379.30 \times 280}{840} \quad \text{€}126.43$$

These figures are based on State Pension rates as at January 2011.

Guardian's Payment (Contributory), Bereavement Grant

Once entitlement to a Guardian's Payment (Contributory) or Bereavement Grant has been established either by virtue of Irish contributions alone or by a combination of Irish and New Zealand, the full appropriate rate is payable.

New Zealand Payments

Any enquiries on New Zealand Payments should be directed to their Ministry of Social Development. Contact details are on page 13.

7. How do I get my payment?

If you live in Ireland

If you qualify you may receive an Irish payment:

- at a chosen post office by Social Services Card or
- direct to your current, deposit or savings account at a financial institution.

If you qualify for Invalidity Pension and you get paid at a post office using Electronic Information Transfer (EIT), you may also avail of the Household Budget Service.

Bereavement Grant is a once-off payment made by cheque.

If you reside outside the State

If you qualify for an Irish pension you may have your payment made by Electronic Fund Transfer to an Irish account or an account within a financial institution outside the State. Payment will be in the currency of the country in which you hold the account. This payment will be made every four weeks. One week will be paid in advance and three weeks will be paid in arrears.

8. Does the Agreement affect any payments I may get from another country?

No!

If you are entitled to a payment under this Agreement, this will not affect your entitlement to a payment by another State under the provisions of the EC Regulations on Social Security.

This means that you could get a payment from another State under EC Regulations and a payment from Ireland under this Agreement at the same time.

This could arise if you had been employed in New Zealand, Ireland and another country covered by EC Regulations.

However, when working out a person's entitlement to a payment under this IRL/New Zealand Agreement, work periods completed in the other country covered by EC Regulations will not be taken into account.

You cannot claim two Irish pensions. For example, if you qualify for one based on a combined contribution record under this Agreement with New Zealand and another based on a combined record with another EU State under EC Regulations, you will receive whichever Irish pension is greater.

9. Can I qualify for a payment from both countries?

Yes!

It is possible for a person to qualify for a payment from both countries (Ireland and New Zealand) at the same time.

10. Can I claim extra benefits?

If you live in Ireland and receive either an Irish or New Zealand social welfare pension, you may qualify for free benefits under the Irish social security system subject to the usual conditions.

- Household Benefits Package (Electricity/Gas Allowance, Free Television License and Telephone allowance),
- Fuel Allowance,
- Free Travel.
